TODS

Course No 1

When your child reaches the toddler stage, they have reached their first milestone. They are no longer infants, and have grown into the mobile stage where they begin to investigate and explore the world around them. Your toddler's natural inquisitiveness will be encouraged and nurtured with daily activities that include music, movement, fitness, playing with toys and equipment, art supplies, blocks, and books that encourage and support their urge to explore and discover. Since toddlers learn through play and exploration, we give them the space, age-appropriate materials, and stimulation they need to help quench their thirst for knowledge of the world around them.

Toddlers will experience: Interactive play, music, and dance. Outdoor time encourages social engagement in plenty of fresh air and sunshine. Age-appropriate fitness toys and activities keep toddlers on the move. Self-help skills such as washing hands, picking up after themselves and sharing are taught to this age group in order to foster sociality assimilation.
